"HANDS OFF" AUSTRIA PLEDGED

BRITAIN TO RETALIATE ON MORATORIUM

Anglo-German Clearing Office Planned.

AGREEMENT TO BE SOUGHT BEFORE DEFINITE ACTION

SPECIAL TO CHINA MAIL.

(By Telegraph, Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1894, Received June 15, 9.48 p.m.)

London, To-day.

In the House of Commons, yesterday, the Chancellor of the Exchequer, Mr. Neville Chamberlain, announced that Great Britain will shortly establish an Anglo-German clearing office in view of the German moratorium.

He stated that the British Ambassador to Berlin, Sir Eric Phipps, had informed the German Government of Britain's intention thereon, but that "We would be prepared to refrain from exercising these powers if a satisfactory agreement ensuring fair treatment for British bondholders can be negotiated."

DETAILS CONSIDERED

Detailed arrangements and the particular bonds to which it will refer will be worked out as soon as possible and, of course, is dependent on the outcome of the negotiations with Germany, Mr. Chamberlain said.

He declared that Germany had been notified of the British Government's intention to propose early legislation, establishing a clearing house unless a satisfactory agreement gives fair treatment to British commerce as well as bondholders.

Mr. Chamberlain told questions that imports between Germany and the Dominions will not be involved in the proposed legislation.

Mr. Chamberlain's main statement was in response to a question as to whether the Government was aware of the German moratorium declaration and what action Britain proposed to take.

PURCHASE RISK

"I should add that anyone who purchases German bonds now held by foreigners does so at his own risk," Mr. Chamberlain said. "It will be observed that the declaration of the Reichsbank refers to medium and long term loans. I have seen no suggestion that the German Government

ANSCHLUSS VIRTUALLY ABANDONED

GERMAN CONCESSION FOR RIGHTS AT GENEVA

CLOSER CONTACT ASSURED

Venice, To-day.

An important diplomatic agreement has been reached between the Italian Premier, Signor Benito Mussolini, and the German Chancellor, Herr Adolf Hitler, based on four points.

Firstly, an agreement of a general character, including frequent personal contacts and correspondence between the two statesmen.

Secondly, recognition. Germany will not give countenance to terrorist activities.

Thirdly, the independence of Austria, but without a guarantee by either party. An expression of Germany's willingness to return to the League of Nations provided her full rights for parity in armaments are recognised.

Fourthly, identity of views on the understanding of stimulating trade in the Danubian countries.

In regard to Austria, the basis of agreement is a concession by Germany of Italy's wishes in return for quid pro quo regarding the League and armaments.

COUNT CIANO, UNDER-SECRETARY OF FOREIGN AFFAIRS, SAID THAT THE AGREEMENT REPRESENTED THE STATE OF MIND OF SIGNOR MUSSOLINI AND HERR HITLER. GERMANY WILL VIRTUALLY ABANDON THE ANSCHLUSS.

It is emphasised here that the agreement lies in the personal relations established between Herr Hitler and Signor Mussolini rather than in actual political questions. It has been established that no documents were signed.

After the dinner at the Grand Hotel, Chancellor Hitler and 11 Duce left separately for the Excelsior Hotel, where a gala evening was held.

The statesmen were seen talking animatedly and watching the members of the aristocracy dancing. Herr Hitler left en route for the Grand Hotel at 11.40 p.m.—Reuter.

DRAWN CLOSER TOGETHER

Venice, To-day.

There can be no doubt that Italy and Germany have been drawn closer together. It is emphasised that the common policy is to avoid a system of blocs or groups of nations. While there is no reference to the Four Power Pact it is important as the pact has been the dominant thesis of Italian diplomacy.

The idea of the Pact was essentially to prevent blocs forming round France and Germany respectively. It is stated that Italy and Germany still hold the same views and wish to work in collaboration with all other countries.

Chancellor Hitler entertained Signor Benito Mussolini at a dinner at the Grand Hotel here, last night.—Reuter.

The sensational defeat of Dorothy Round by Sarah Palfrey was responsible for Britain being led by 2 matches to 1 at the conclusion of the first day's play in the Wightman Cup series at Wimbledon yesterday.

To-day three singles and one doubles match will conclude the eleventh encounter in the series, in which America leads by 7 wins to 3.

POLICE POSSE SCOUR STANLEY FOR SOLDIERS

Alleged Attack On Car Driver.

THREE BORDERER PRIVATES REPORTED MISSING

A LARGE POSSE OF POLICE, INCLUDING A NUMBER OF MOTOR-CYCLE POLICE OFFICERS, ARE AT PRESENT SCOURING THE COUNTRYSIDE IN THE VICINITY OF ISLAND ROAD AND REPULSE BAY FOR THREE BRITISH SOLDIERS, FOLLOWING THE REPORT LATE LAST NIGHT OF A PUBLIC VEHICLE DRIVER, WHO CLAIMS TO HAVE BEEN ATTACKED AND ROBBED NEAR REPULSE BAY BEACH.

Three British soldiers were seen in the vicinity of Stanley Police Station at about 1.20 this morning, but all efforts to locate them have, up to the moment, proved unavailing.

Coincidentally a report has been made from Murray Barracks of the disappearance of Privates Holley, Roberts and Booth, of the South Wales Borderers, who failed to return to barracks last night.

CAR CHARTERED

Lo King, a public vehicle driver, made a report to the police that his car, No. 351, was engaged by three British soldiers at 11.30 p.m. in Gloucester Road to go to Repulse Bay beach. A sum of $2 was paid in advance.

On arrival at a spot near Repulse Bay Hotel one of the soldiers gripped him from behind while the other two struck him with their fists and at the same time extracted $2 from his pocket. The soldiers then departed the car and ran towards the beach.

CONSIDERABLE IMPROVEMENT ON WALL ST.

Brighter Market Over Week-End.

SILVER EXTREMELY DULL

New York, To-day.

Considerable improvement took place in the New York market position, yesterday, but the trading figure continued low, only 730,000 shares changing hands.

Industrials and rails advanced 1.55 and .56 to 98.70 and 45.25, while utilities and bonds were up .48 and .07 to 24.46 and 94.60, respectively. The commodity index improved 38 to 57.55.

In their market report, Messrs. White, Weld and Company, through their local correspondents, Messrs. S. E. Levy and Company, state:—

"Stocks: With the prospects apparently brighter for some settlement of the steel strike, the market showed considerable improvement to-day. However, the solution of the strike may require the prolongation of the Congressional session, with its accompanying uncertainties. We would not take the latest Thomas inflation proposals too seriously. We anticipate a better market over the week-end, but we would use such strength to take some trading profits."

BRIDGE NOTES

A Psychological Raise

by Ely Culbertson.

Mr. Jacob Sicherman writes me from Buffalo that they play a great deal of Bridge at the Montefiore Club there. He laments that they do not always play with the elegance of experts, but says that the games there at least do not lack verve and animation. Particularly is this true, he declares, when Mr. George Michael Raikin, a lawyer of Buffalo, sits in at the Bridge table. Mr. Sicherman, playing with Mr. Raikin, recently picked up this strong hand: He was South and vulnerable.

Spades A K 10 9 5
Hearts A 10
Diamonds A K 10
Clubs A K Q
Mr. Sicherman bid two spades, West passed, and Mr. Raikin, sitting North, responded with the minimum two notrump. Of course, South had a phenomenally strong two-bid, including 7 honour-tricks.

Perhaps it would have been the counsel of wisdom to bid three notrump and cash the game and rubber, but Mr. Sicherman says that he felt fairly safe in giving his partner plenty of rope, so instead of three notrump, he bid three spades. His partner's response was five spades, and naturally the Opening bidder then bid a Grand Slam.

The Opening lead was a diamond, and North laid down this Dummy:

Spades J 8 7 4 3
Hearts K 9 7 5 2
Diamonds 5
Clubs 8 4

The spade Queen dropped, and the Grand Slam was a laydown. Then followed a rather heated post-mortem. Both opponents told Dr. Raikin exactly what they thought of such bidding. Mr. Sicherman entered the argument and gave his own mental reactions to the bidding.

He said that when he made his bid of three spades, if his partner had called three notrump or four spades that would have ended it. After the two-notrump response to 1934 at the registered office of the Company situate at York Building, 1st Floor, Victoria in the Colony of Hongkong at the respective times below mentioned, namely:—

In analysing the situation, Mr. Sicherman thinks that the five-spade bid was perfectly sound. North had said that he did not have 1 honour-trick plus and adequate trump support. The lack of honour-tricks, of course, could be no surprise to South.

Another bid from him below the game level would simply tend to show a preference for notrump or spades as a final declaration. The analysis goes on that with North's holding and a Rebid of the spade suit by the Opening bidder, a contract of five spades should be safe, even with a minimum Opening Forcing bid.

Mr. Sicherman waxes enthusiastic over his partner's bid, but other members of the club, particularly the East and West players, insist that North was just a trifle mad. Mr. Sicherman himself is somewhat doubtful, but insists that if there was any madness, it was madness touched with genius.

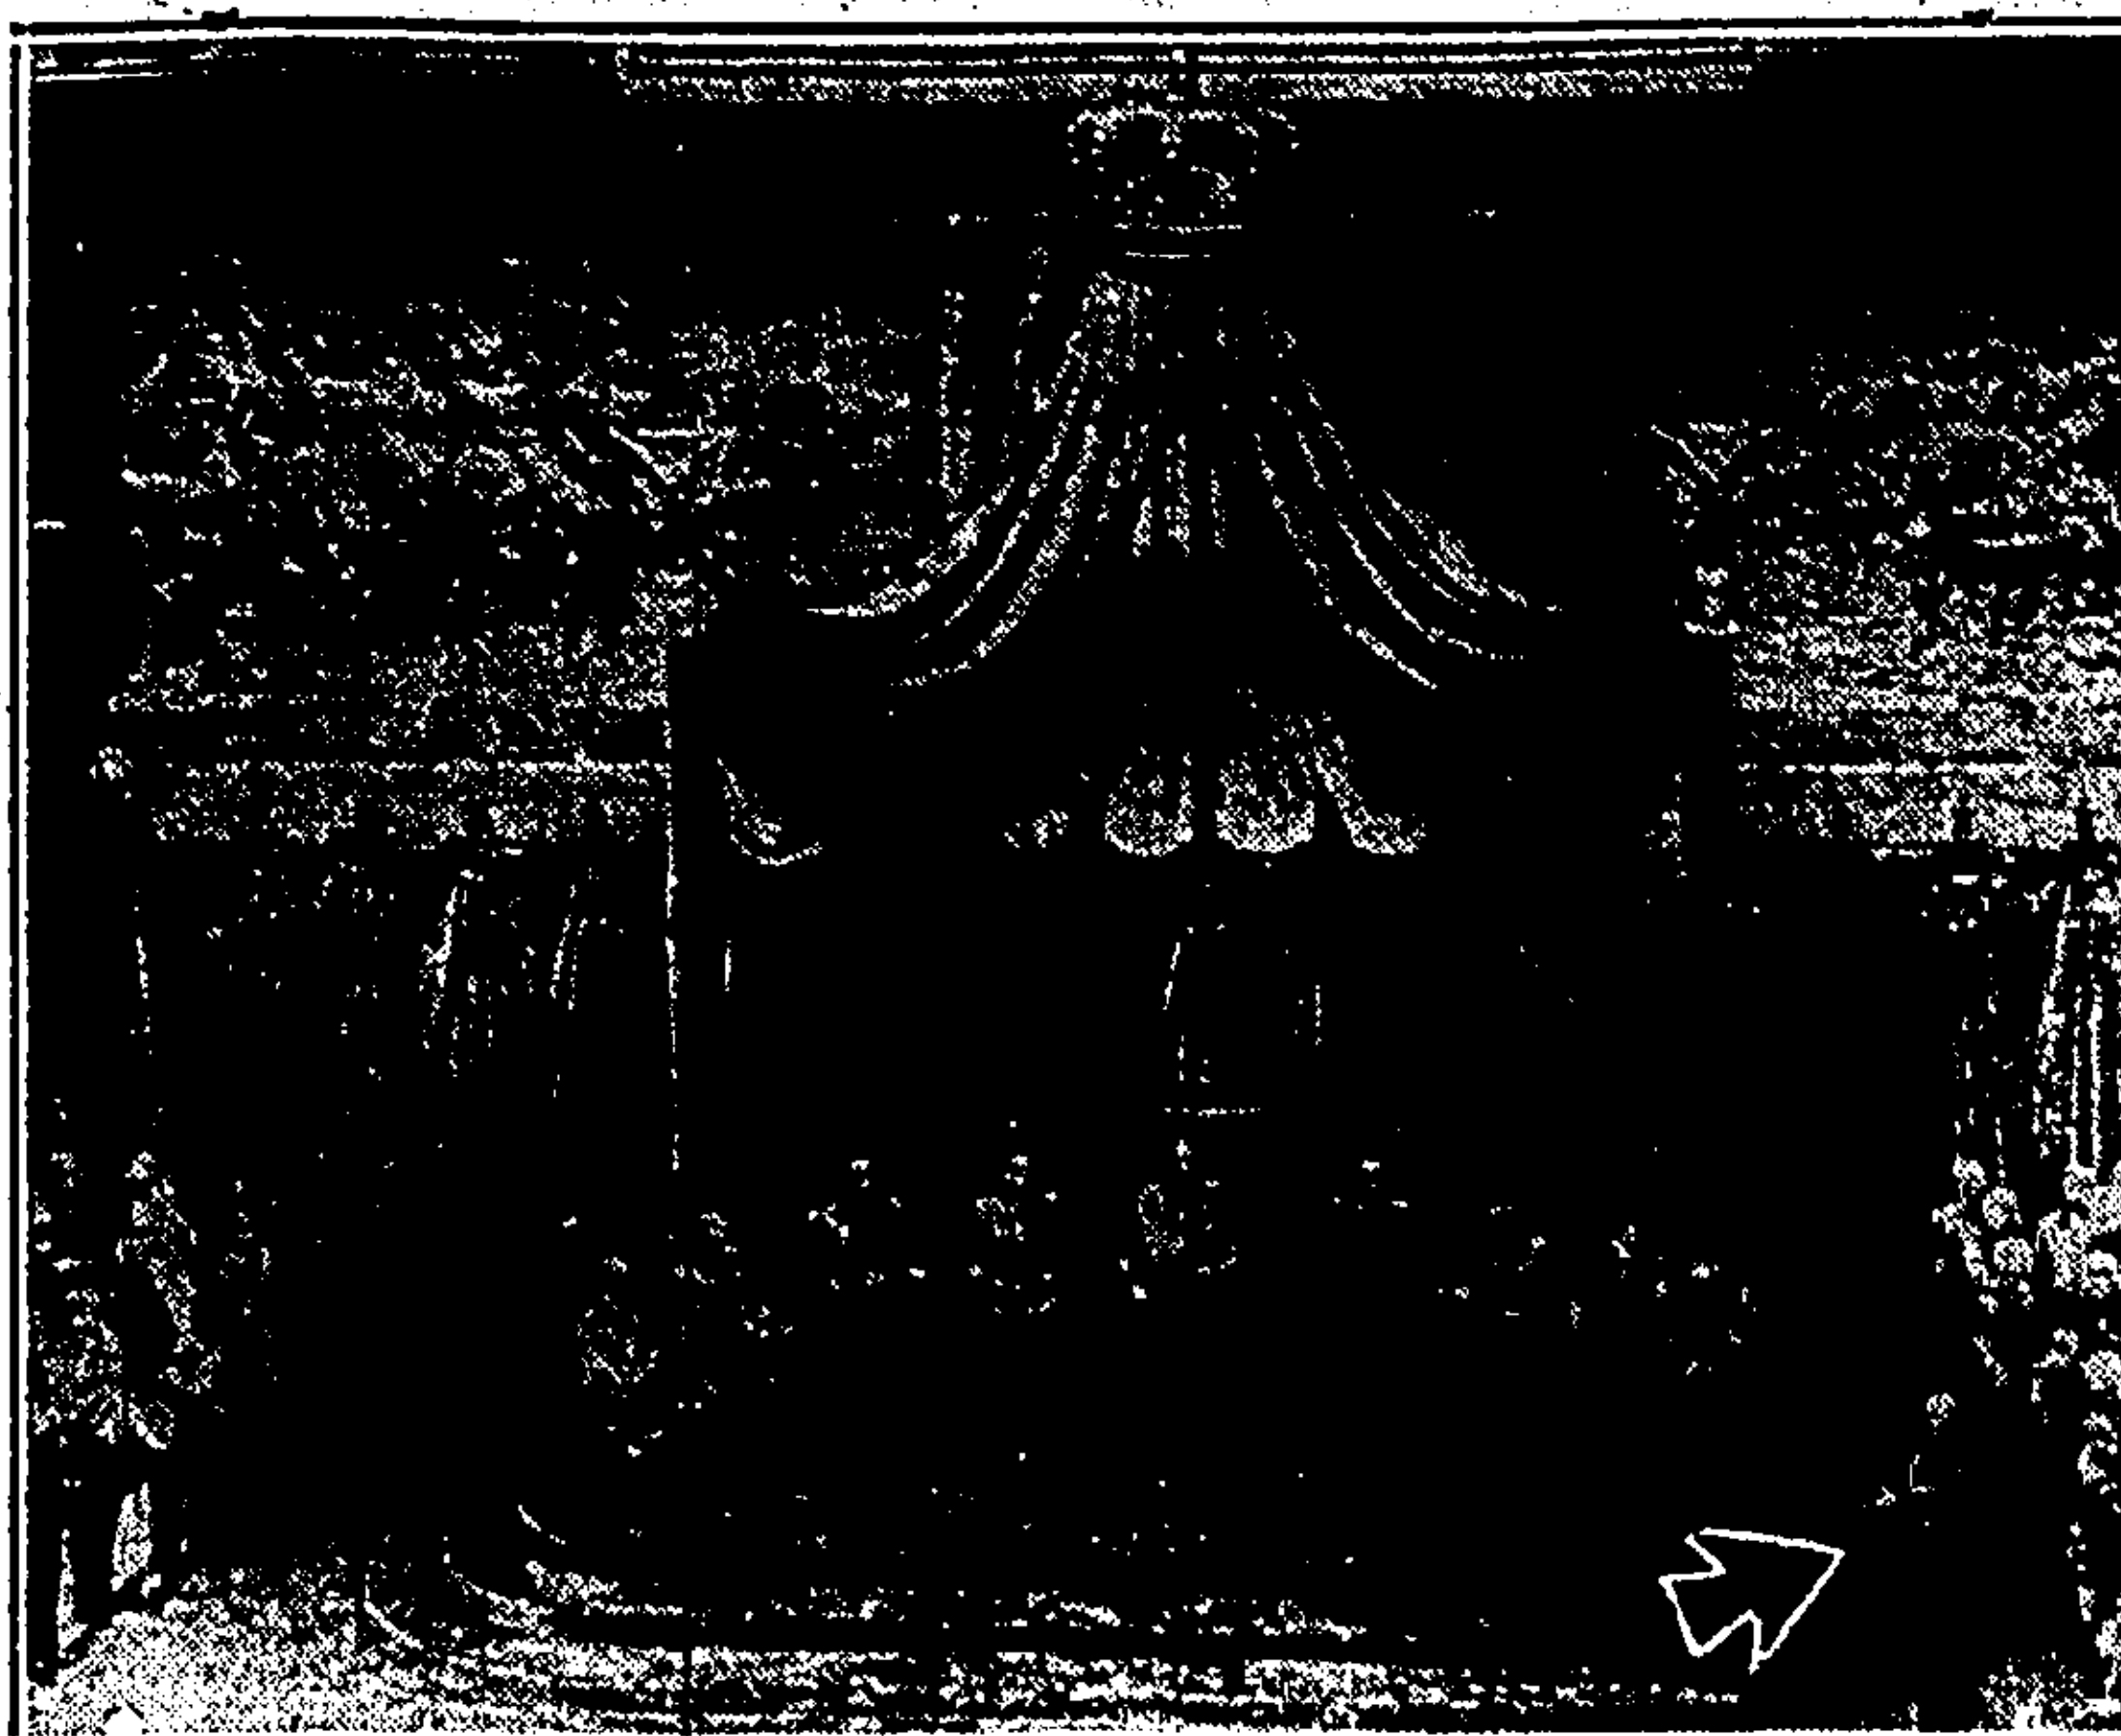

In considering the case, I am inclined to think that the five-spade bid, while very unconventional, has much to commend it in view of the previous minimum response. No other bid short of game is available except to show the heart suit, and this, after all, could serve no useful purpose.

THREE MEN RAID A PRISON

Two Convicts Released After Fight

Madrid. Three men persuaded the door-keeper of the San Fernando prison to let them enter the gaol "to take parcels to convicts." The moment they were inside, they sprang upon the janitor. Two gagged and bound him, while the third pointed a revolver at his head. They seized the keys, went to the cells, and freed two convicts in prison for shooting, and severely injuring, a man in a local theatre last November. All five then walked calmly out of the prison—and have not been seen since.—Reuter.

On the balcony above is the Queen and the Royal Princesses. When this Parliament adjourns there will be no other.

NEW YORK'S TELEPHONE OVERCHARGES

Subscriber's Victory In Court Suit.

$18,000,000 RACKET ALLEGED

New York. The laurel of victory in the form of $5.40 (slightly more than £1) has been awarded to Dr. Alton A. Smahl, New York otolaryngologist, by a six man jury here. His efforts to win this sum have cost the doctor $600.

The loser in the case was the New York Telephone Company, multi-million dollar public utility.

Dr. Smahl has been fighting the Telephone Company for eight years on the subject of overcharges. It has become, indeed, a hobby—a passion—with him.

Although he has wrangled with the company for years, the court action in which he won his victory only involved overcharges for five months of last year.

The doctor kept a record of every call which he made and kept a lock on the dial telephone when it was not in use. When he refused to pay the overcharges which he found on his bills the company interrupted his service limiting it to incoming calls.

For this inconvenience he is contemplating another suit. Perhaps it will be for £2,000. He finally paid the overcharges. He then sued the company.

One Witness v. 15. The Telephone Company produced fifteen witnesses at the trial. Dr. Smahl produced one—his former secretary. The company protested that the dial telephone was 99.77 per cent correct. It added that the lock on the dial meant nothing as operator would answer if one jiggled the hook 10 times and waited 45 seconds.

The jury, after one hour's deliberation, indicated its preference for the doctor's records by awarding him the verdict.

Since the Telephone Company interrupted his service, Dr. Smahl has organised the subscribers Protective League against the New York Telephone Company's Abuses. Most of the members are his patients but, following his court victory, he expects to obtain thousands of others.

"There's such a thing as the pioneering spirit." The doctor said. "If a man's worth being called an American citizen, it's up to him to fight every injustice he sees, to fight it for the sake of others who may not have the time, the strength or the means." The doctor alleges that "between $15,000,000 and $18,000,000 is taken annually by this overcharge racket." The New York Telephone Company is considering appealing the verdict.—Reuter.

MARCUS SHOW CHANGE

"Broadway Merry-Go-Round To-morrow

"FANTASIES OF 1934" TO FOLLOW

To-day the final performances of "La Vie Parée" will be given by the Marcus Show at the Queen's Theatre.

Commencing from to-morrow and continuing for three days, "Broadway Merry-Go-Round" will be staged as the second of the Marcus cycle of three revues. For the final stanza of the engagement a third harlequinade, "Fantasies of 1934," will be provided.

Efforts to extend the Hong Kong run at the Queen's Theatre have not been possible, as bookings in Canton, Manila and thereafter cannot be set aside or postponed.

Fourteen performances remain to see what is generally pronounced to be the most meritorious girl-song-and-dance show that has ever been regaled to Colony theatregoers.

Like its predecessor, "Broadway Merry-Go-Round" is one of those opulent, colourful, celeritous extravaganzas, designed with the sole intent of entertaining, without working too strenuously on the intellect. There are thirty scenes including a pretentious travesty on Gilbert and Sullivan's travesty, "Pinafore."

All the favourites, will perform including Leon Miller, Ben McAtee, Elmer Coudy, Karels' Adagio Four, Harvey, Young and Kaye, Les Sechrist and Bottie Coudy.

Miss Hepburn started acting in plays at Bryn Mawr College and after many setbacks, during which she played in smaller roles in many big stage productions, she finally made her first real hit in the lead of "Warrior Husband." Her later successes are "Bill of Divorcement" with John Barrymore, "Christopher Strong" and lately, "Little Women" ago.—Reuter.

Cinema Notes

"THE MARCUS SHOW"—QUEEN'S THEATRE

The Marcus Show is filled with a galaxy of beautiful girls, comedies, songs, dances, acrobatics, and skits that are punctuated with rhythm. The girls are livelier and lovelier than any other touring troupe seen in the Colony before, and, it is one of the cleverest, most expensive and most beautiful revues ever brought to the Far East.

Much credit is due to Charles Hugo, the managing director and Leon Miller, the dance director and production manager.

Miller is not only dance director and production manager but a first-class comedian. There are so many stars in this production that it is difficult to select any individual other than Miller for an outstanding performance.

The Marcus Show is daring and sophisticated without being vulgar.

"JIMMY AND SALLY"—KING'S THEATRE

James Dunn, whose many successes have made him the idol of the screen, and Claire Trevor, who is rapidly gaining an equally important position in the hearts of the men, are partners in the new Fox Film romance, "Jimmy and Sally," now showing at the King's Theatre.

The picture is about two youngsters, living in an apartment house, whose financial positions prevent them from being married, and whose marriage postponements for the plot of the story.

Harvey Stephens, star in the "Worst Woman in Paris," Lya Lys, Jed Prouty, Gloria Roy, Alma Lloyd and John Aredge are in the supporting cast.

"MELODY IN SPRING"—ALHAMBRA THEATRE

"Melody in Spring," The Open Road and "Ending with a Kiss" are song features in Paramount's latest release, "Melody in Spring," starring Lanny Ross, the noted radio singer, in his first film.

Ross, who is now under a long term contract with the Paramount studios, is supported by a distinguished cast of Hollywood stars in this picture, which includes Charles Ruggles, Mary Boland, Ann Sothern, George Meeker, Wade Boteler and Helen Lynd.

Ross takes the part of an ambitious singer, whose one desire is to secure a contract with the radio broadcast of Blodgett's Dog-Biscuit hour. In his struggle for fame, he meets the beautiful daughter of the manager of the radio concern, or whom he hopes to sing.

"THE KID FROM SPAIN"—ORIENTAL THEATRE

Featuring Eddie Cantor, "The Kid From Spain" is one of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's biggest, funniest, and most glamorous musicals ever produced.

Beautifully photographed, M. G. M. have paraded 72 of Hollywood's most attractive girls in this picture.

Others in the cast are Lyda Roberti, Robert Young, Ruth Hall, John Miljan, Carrol, Naish and Stanley Field.

"SAMARANG"—MAJESTIC THEATRE

Unfolding a love story to the accompaniment of thrilling battles between man and beast on land and sea, United Artists' production "Samarang," now showing at the Majestic Theatre, is noteworthy for its picturesque and beautiful photography.

"LOOKING FORWARD"—STAR THEATRE

"Looking Forward," the M-G-M adaptation from the English play "Service," is a powerful human drama with an up-to-date story. The principal parts in the film are portrayed by Lionel Barrymore and Lewis Stone. The supporting cast is a very strong one, including Elizabeth Allan, Benita Hume, Philip Holmes, Doris Lloyd, Colla Clive and Douglas Walton.

In the world football championship final Italy to-day defeated Czechoslovakia, 2-1 after a stubborn fight.

American Walker Cup Invaders At St. Andrew's.

American Walker Cup golfers who successfully invaded Great Britain are shown during a preliminary practice session on the famous course of St. Andrews, Scotland. Going over the bridge in order are Johnny Goodman (right), W. Lawson Little, the new British amateur champion, Johnny Fischer and Gus Moreland. They were getting in trim for the first game.

ANOTHER FRIGHT FOR U.S. GOLF CHAMPION

DUNLAP TAKEN TO LAST HOLE: LISTER HARTLEY BEATEN BY GUILFORD

Prestwick, May 23.

GEORGE DUNLAP, the holder of the American Amateur title, had another narrow escape in the British Amateur Championship, which was continued here to-day.

In the second round he met another American, A. William Breault, aged 26, an insurance broker, of Detroit. Breault is on holiday in this country, which he is visiting for the first time. As a golfer he is unknown, even in the States, having played only once before in a national event. His home course is situated on a little island near Detroit, and, except for winning a few local competitions, he has done absolutely nothing in the great world of golf.

Yet this obscure player, a little man, with a quick, nervous walk and an apologetic air, as if about to say, "I am sorry if I am inconveniencing you," came desperately near to bringing about the downfall of the champion of the United States.

Breault's start was positively startling. Following a long drive down the gully, he put a mashie shot three yards from the pin and holed the putt for a 3 at the first hole. Then at the second, a short hole of 125 yards, he put his tee shot a yard from the flag and holed the putt for a 2. Dunlap got the regulation figures, a 4 and a 3, and was two down.

IN POW BURN AGAIN

Not being a big hitter, Breault decided to play short of the Cardinal bunker with his second shot at the third. Dunlap crashed a brassie shot over the frowning sleepers and won the hole. He had a miraculous escape at the next, where he cut his drive into the Pow Burn. As Breault failed to take advantage of this Heaven-sent chance, Dunlap scrambled a half. However, Breault won the 7th, where he put a brassie close to the hole. Dunlap was now 2 down, but he won the next three holes in perfect 4's.

This, I thought, was the end of the man from Detroit, but not a bit of it. At the short 11th he hit an iron shot four feet from the flag and holed the putt for another two. So the terrific duel proceeded, and it was not until the fifteenth that Dunlap again got his nose in front, and this time kept it there. Breault hooked an iron shot into a thick scrub on the hillside and could do no better than a 9.

(By GEORGE GREENWOOD.)

Dunlap's luck held to the end for his pitch to the green struck the hillside in almost the same spot, but the ball ricocheted on to the green. Dunlap won the hole in four, and halved the last three each in four to win a great match one up.

Dunlap now meets George Han-nay, a London stockbroker, and a former champion of France.

There are five members of the United States Walker Cup team still alive, only one being defeated, G. Moreland, a picturesque figure from Dallas, in Texas, where in his boyhood days he helped his mother to keep the home together.

Moreland once won a $2,500 motor-car as a golf prize, but, afraid lest he jeopardised his amateur status, returned the car, keeping only the maker's name-plate as a souvenir.

Moreland was beaten by Johnny Fischer, a tall, very sparsely-built player, with one of the quickest swings I have ever seen. He hits the ball enormous distances, however, and generally keeps a good line. He is 21 years of age and a varsity student at Cincinnati.

Neither was able to make any headway until the twelfth, a hole of 503 yards, where Fischer, having cut his drive into the hills, hit a fine recovery shot and then put an iron on to the middle of the green and holed the putt for a 4, to become one up. He held on grimly to this slender lead, and then won the fifteenth and sixteenth, where he hit colossal drives, each in 3.

Fischer meets Jack McLean, the Scottish idol, and unless there is a marked improvement in the latter's golf he will not survive the next round.

GOODMAN'S FIRST MATCH

Johnny Goodman, the Open Champion of America, made his first appearance, and in many respects it was quite impressive. A little fellow with a quick stride, a jaunty manner, and a very alert mind, he again demonstrated his efficiency in every department of the game.

In the accepted sense of the word Goodman is not a long driver. Indeed, he was persistently out-driven by his opponent, Dr. W. M. Robb, senior house surgeon at a Birmingham hospital and a plus one player at Moseley, where he is captain of the club.

To be left behind from the tee is a disturbing influence in the case of many golfers, but Goodman pays not the slightest attention.

For all I know he may have something up his sleeve, but at any rate he did not require to show it, as he was generally on the green with the second shot and always a good deal nearer the pin than his opponent. Like all the first-class American players, Goodman is extremely effective in the shots round about the green.

There were two occasions in the match where he won a hole and saved another by deft pitching and chipping. One was at the seventh 433 yards where, against the wind, he did not reach the green with a spoon shot, but played a clever run up to within two feet of the flag for a certain 4. The other occasion was at the eighth, where Goodman pitched dead from the rough for another 4, having mis-hit a brassie shot. Robb played a gallant shot from the edge of a bunker to the middle of the green, 200 yards away, and in the process over-balanced into the hazard.

CRAIGENGOWER SHOULD CREEP CLOSER TITLE

Police Not Expected To Win At Home

JUNIORS SHOULD RETAIN THEIR LEAD

The Craigengower "A", who will be entertained by their neighbours, the Police R. C. in to-day's Lawn Bowls League, will have the opportunity of reducing the arrears caused by their two defeats this season. They will not, however, be able to draw level with the champions, the Kowloon Bowling Green, who are not engaged this week.

In the absence of J. C. Chalmers and R. Wallace, Taikoo are not expected to hold their own against the Craigengower "B" who will pay them a visit. The "B" team is exceedingly strong at the moment, and should record a high scoring victory.

The Civil Servants should win their first away match, but the Kowloon Docks will be extended to beat the Club de Recreio.

Police To Retain Lead

The Police, who visit Craigengower, are favoured to retain the leadership of the Junior Division this season, but the Yachtsmen may not have matters all their own way against the Electricians at Ming Yuen. The Indians should beat the Club de Recreio at Kowloon, while the Civil Servants should garner both points from the Kowloon C.C. at Happy Valley.

The following are to-day's fixtures in the Lawn Bowls League, giving the last season's results in brackets.

WHITE SOX SIGN ON FEHRING

New Back-Stop For Chicago

Chicago, June 11.

It was revealed to-day that Ted Fehring, former Purdue gridiron star, has been signed by the Chicago White Sox of the American League.

Fehring will be given a month's trial by the White Sox, behind the bat.

They seem to be having difficulty in finding a backstop as on May 20 they signed catcher Eddie Madjeski, recently released by the Philadelphia Athletics, and at the same time sent catcher Johnny Pasek to the Oakland Oaks of the Pacific Coast League.—United Press.

GERMAN HORSEMEN WIN FROM FRENCH

Convincing Success At Warsaw

Warsaw, June 11.

Some consolation for the two bitter disappointments met recently at Nice and Rome was gained here to-day when the German horsemen carried off the first prize in the international riding contest making 36 faults as against 75 each by France and Poland, and 148.25 by Latvia. Among the 30,000 spectators was the President of the Polish Republic, Mr. Moscicki.

NOURNEY'S DEFEAT GIVES FRANCE WIN

Merlin's Inspired Game In Davis Cup

10,000 SEE VON CRAMM BEAT BOUSSUS

Paris, June 11.

A crowd of 10,000 lawn tennis enthusiasts, among whom were M. Louis Barthou, French Foreign Minister, as well as the Ambassadors of the United States, Germany and Poland, watched the Davis Cup encounter between France and Germany, which the former won by 3 matches to 2.

After winning the first set at 6-4 Andre Merlin lost the first two games of the second set to D. Nourney, who took the lead on his service.

The Frenchman, however remained calm and thrilled the audience with remarkably precise drives and smashing volleys, winning four games in succession and bringing the score to 4-2 in his favour. The German then went to the net and succeeded in evening the score at 4-4 and taking the lead at 5-4.

The next game, however, went to Merlin, who also took the two subsequent games and the set at 7-5.

The third set was clear proof of Merlin's superiority. The Frenchman's game became swifter. His assaults to the net were successful and his backhand more precise. The set went to Merlin at 6-2, and he thus won the match and brought France the victory over Germany by 3 matches to 1.

Von Cramm Wins The Bye

The last match, between Christian Boussus and G. Von Cramm, though played after the outcome of the Franco-German tournament had already been decided by the previous game, was, nevertheless, watched breathlessly by the spectators.

In the first set, the German took the initiative forcing his adversary to the back of the court.

Boussus took a long time to settle down, and Von Cramm, taking advantage of the situation, won the first five games. The sixth game, however, went to the Frenchman, who then lost the next game and the set at 6-1.

In the second set Von Cramm continued his attacks, making his adversary run all over the court. Completely outplayed by his opponent, the Frenchman lost the second set at 6-0.

In the third set, the German seemed tired, and Boussus, encouraged by the cheering crowds, took 6 games in succession, winning at 6-0.

After the players had rested for a while, the match was resumed and the game became more closely contested than in the preceding sets.

German Faultless

Von Cramm did not commit a single error, while his French opponent's game was not as good as usual.

Boussus' backhands lacked precision and Von Cramm, immediately realizing this, exploited the Frenchman's weak point throughout the set.

The first two games were won by Von Cramm, and then Boussus won a game. But the German champion was clearly dominating play, ceaselessly sending his opponent from one end of the court to the other.

After Von Cramm had succeeded in bringing the score to 4-1, the Frenchman launched a skilful attack and took the next game.

The German retaliated and brought the score to 5-2, whereupon Boussus won two games in succession.

Von Cramm, however, took the next game, winning the set at 6-4, and bringing Germany the second victory out of five matches played. The first victory was scored at the commencement of the tournament, also by Von Cramm, who defeated Merlin. The French team won the two other singles and the doubles.—Havas.

PERRY AND HUGHES TURN TIDE AGAINST FRENCHMEN

VICTORY OVER BRUGNON & GENTEN GAINS ONE-POINT MARGIN

By A. WALLIS MYERS

reaction, he found his way to 4-1 by stirring tennis, some of his passing shots having inspiration to support them. But Perry was only temporarily in difficulties, and, although he never quite regained his first set form, he won just enough vital points to save the set.

Then came a victory quite unexpected for the British International Club—the triumph of Raymond Tuckey over Brugnon.

There was no element of luck about this fine bit of work. Tuckey not only attacked with great gusto all through, his fine service earning many points, but made any number of sparkling recoveries in the wings, never letting up for one second.

The loss of the second set in which Brugnon was at his best in no way discouraged him. He got an early service break in the third set and never looked back, playing some of the best tennis in the next seven games seen at Auteuil.

Another surprise, influencing the final result, was the victory of Austin and Malfroy over Borotra and Bernard in the doubles.

The alliance of these two former Cambridge captains was entirely new. It required a set to steady itself and reveal its power. The two sets were brilliantly carried. Austin's service returns were gems; they eluded the incoming volleyer time and again. Overhead and on the volley Austin showed himself a champion, and he received a splendid support from Malfroy.

Borotra's famous backhand service return was out of commission, and Bernard, although he made many brilliant individual coups, mixed his good shots with enough bad ones to lose points.

Sharp just failed after an heroic effort to beat Landry and so both countries were level at 8 matches all, with the result depending on the doubles match between Perry and Hughes and Brugnon and Gentien.

A CLOSE FINISH

On paper this looked a fairly safe thing for the British Davis Cup pair, but they found the Frenchmen in their most teasing mood, capable of astute fencing for position of breaking through the service. Perry and Hughes

GOLF

AMERICAN'S CAMPAIGN

Goodman does not believe in taking risks; he is content to play the holes in the par figures and to leave the rest to look after itself. In the vast majority of cases this plan is good enough for the purpose.

To make certain of avoiding the railway at the first hole which runs alongside the fairway with the green flush against the boundary wall, Goodman took an iron. It is conceivable that he would have had a 3, for he was only six feet from the pin with his second shot, but he was not asked to hole out as his opponent had driven on to the railway.

The American hit a gorgeous drive over the corner of the bunker jutting out from the Pow Burn at the fourth, put a No. 4 iron shot two feet from the flag, and holed the putt for a 3. Out in 37 and three up. Goodman was never seriously pressed, though he could never afford to take things casual.

The only hole he lost was the twelfth, where he completely missed a brassie shot, put his third over the green and finally took 6. Goodman made up for this with a beautiful 3 at the fourteenth, where he holed his first and only long putt of the round. This was the end—5 and 4—Goodman's score being one over 4's for the fourteen holes.

Another American victory was that of Jack Westland, a stockbroker, of Chicago, who defeated Lt.-Col. A. W. Tate, of the Royal and Ancient Club.

The fact that the American was out in 42 and one up, suggests that Tate did not take full advantage of the chances offered. Two up at the third, he lost four holes in a row. Coming home Westland putted exquisitely and won by 4 and 2.

Among the British casualties was Lister Hartley, who was beaten by Jesse Gulliford, the Boston "sledge gun" though some of the old ferocity of his driving has disappeared. Hartley, never recovering from a tragic start, was beaten 4 and 2.

FIVE WICKETS FOR ONE RUN

Cambridge Bowler's Brilliant Spell

GLAMORGAN FATTEN

A DEADLY spell of bowling by A. G. Pelham brought success to Cambridge University earlier than expected at Fenner's recently, when Glamorgan were beaten by ten wickets.

Following on 227 behind the University's first innings score of 513 for three declared, the Welsh county made such a stubborn fight that 212 were on the board with only four wickets down. But with Pelham taking five wickets in the course of fifteen deliveries, at the personal cost of a single, the remaining batsmen were out for the addition of 23! Thus Cambridge were only left to get 14 to win.

Dyson and Davies shaped well for Glamorgan, scoring 57 for the opening partnership in three-quarters of an hour, and Davies and Duckfield were not separated until the second wicket had added 80. Completing his second century this season, Duckfield offered three chances—the first when 59—in a stay of two hours fifty minutes. He hit nine 4's, being especially strong on the leg side.

Hare's Rise Due To Great Faith

NOW PERRY'S PARTNER

Here is an interesting little story of C. E. Hare, the new 18-years-old lawn tennis star—he will be 19 on July 16—who is now Fred Perry's doubles partner.

But for the careful nursing of H. W. Payne, the Warwickshire L.T.A. president, he would probably have faded into a nonentity.

After he had won the junior championship in 1931 Hare was invited to visit London for coaching. On the first trip it rained all day, on his second visit it was again wet and on the third occasion when he did get a trial, he was a big disappointment.

Since then London has offered little encouragement to Hare, and the fact that he is now a first-class man is due, firstly, to the interest shown in him by Warwickshire's president; and, secondly, to the help and advice he has had from county players and members of the Priory Club, Edgbaston, where he learned his tennis.

INDIAN "GURU" CLAIMED 300 YEARS-OF-AGE

Startling Statement
By Yogi.

STRANGE POWERS DEMONSTRATED

Lahore. "My guru (teacher) is at least 300 years old and does not show signs of ageing. I do not know whether there is death to any such as he. He wanders the face of India and has no fixed abode." This astounding statement was made to a Reuters correspondent by an Indian yogi (ascetic) who is now in Lahore. He added that he parted from his guru 13 months ago on the banks of the Kodaveri River and did not know whether he would again meet him.

The Yogi, who looked about 30, did not know his own age, for, as he naively explained, there were no such things as calendars in forests, and though daily the sun rises and sets, the lapse of time is unmeasured. Besides, what is time to those who exist beyond time?

Before a select gathering of some distinguished personalities of Lahore which, curiously enough, included the head of the Punjab Criminal Investigation Department, the yogi was buried alive for half an hour, while the gathering prosaically took tea. He was then dug up and on returning to consciousness, was found hale and hearty. It was explained that the yogi could remain thus buried indefinitely. The time limit of half an hour was a concession to the time limitations of his audience.

Similar feats such as laying him on a plank studded with six inch nails that had been specially sharpened and breaking stones on his chest in this posture with a sledge hammer were performed with complete nonchalance. His arm was pierced with a long needle but no blood was drawn. A weight of 30 pounds was attached to the needle when still embedded in the arm and the whole thing lifted up in the air.

That his conscious mind was able so to command the subconscious as to control the involuntary nerves and enable him to achieve all these and other feats was the explanation of the yogi for his possession of these powers. How had he developed these powers? Through practice of yoga, through development of the will, through purity in word, thought and deed. Such powers were essential to the forest dweller and they were but incidentals in the development of the personality.

TAMES WILD ANIMALS.

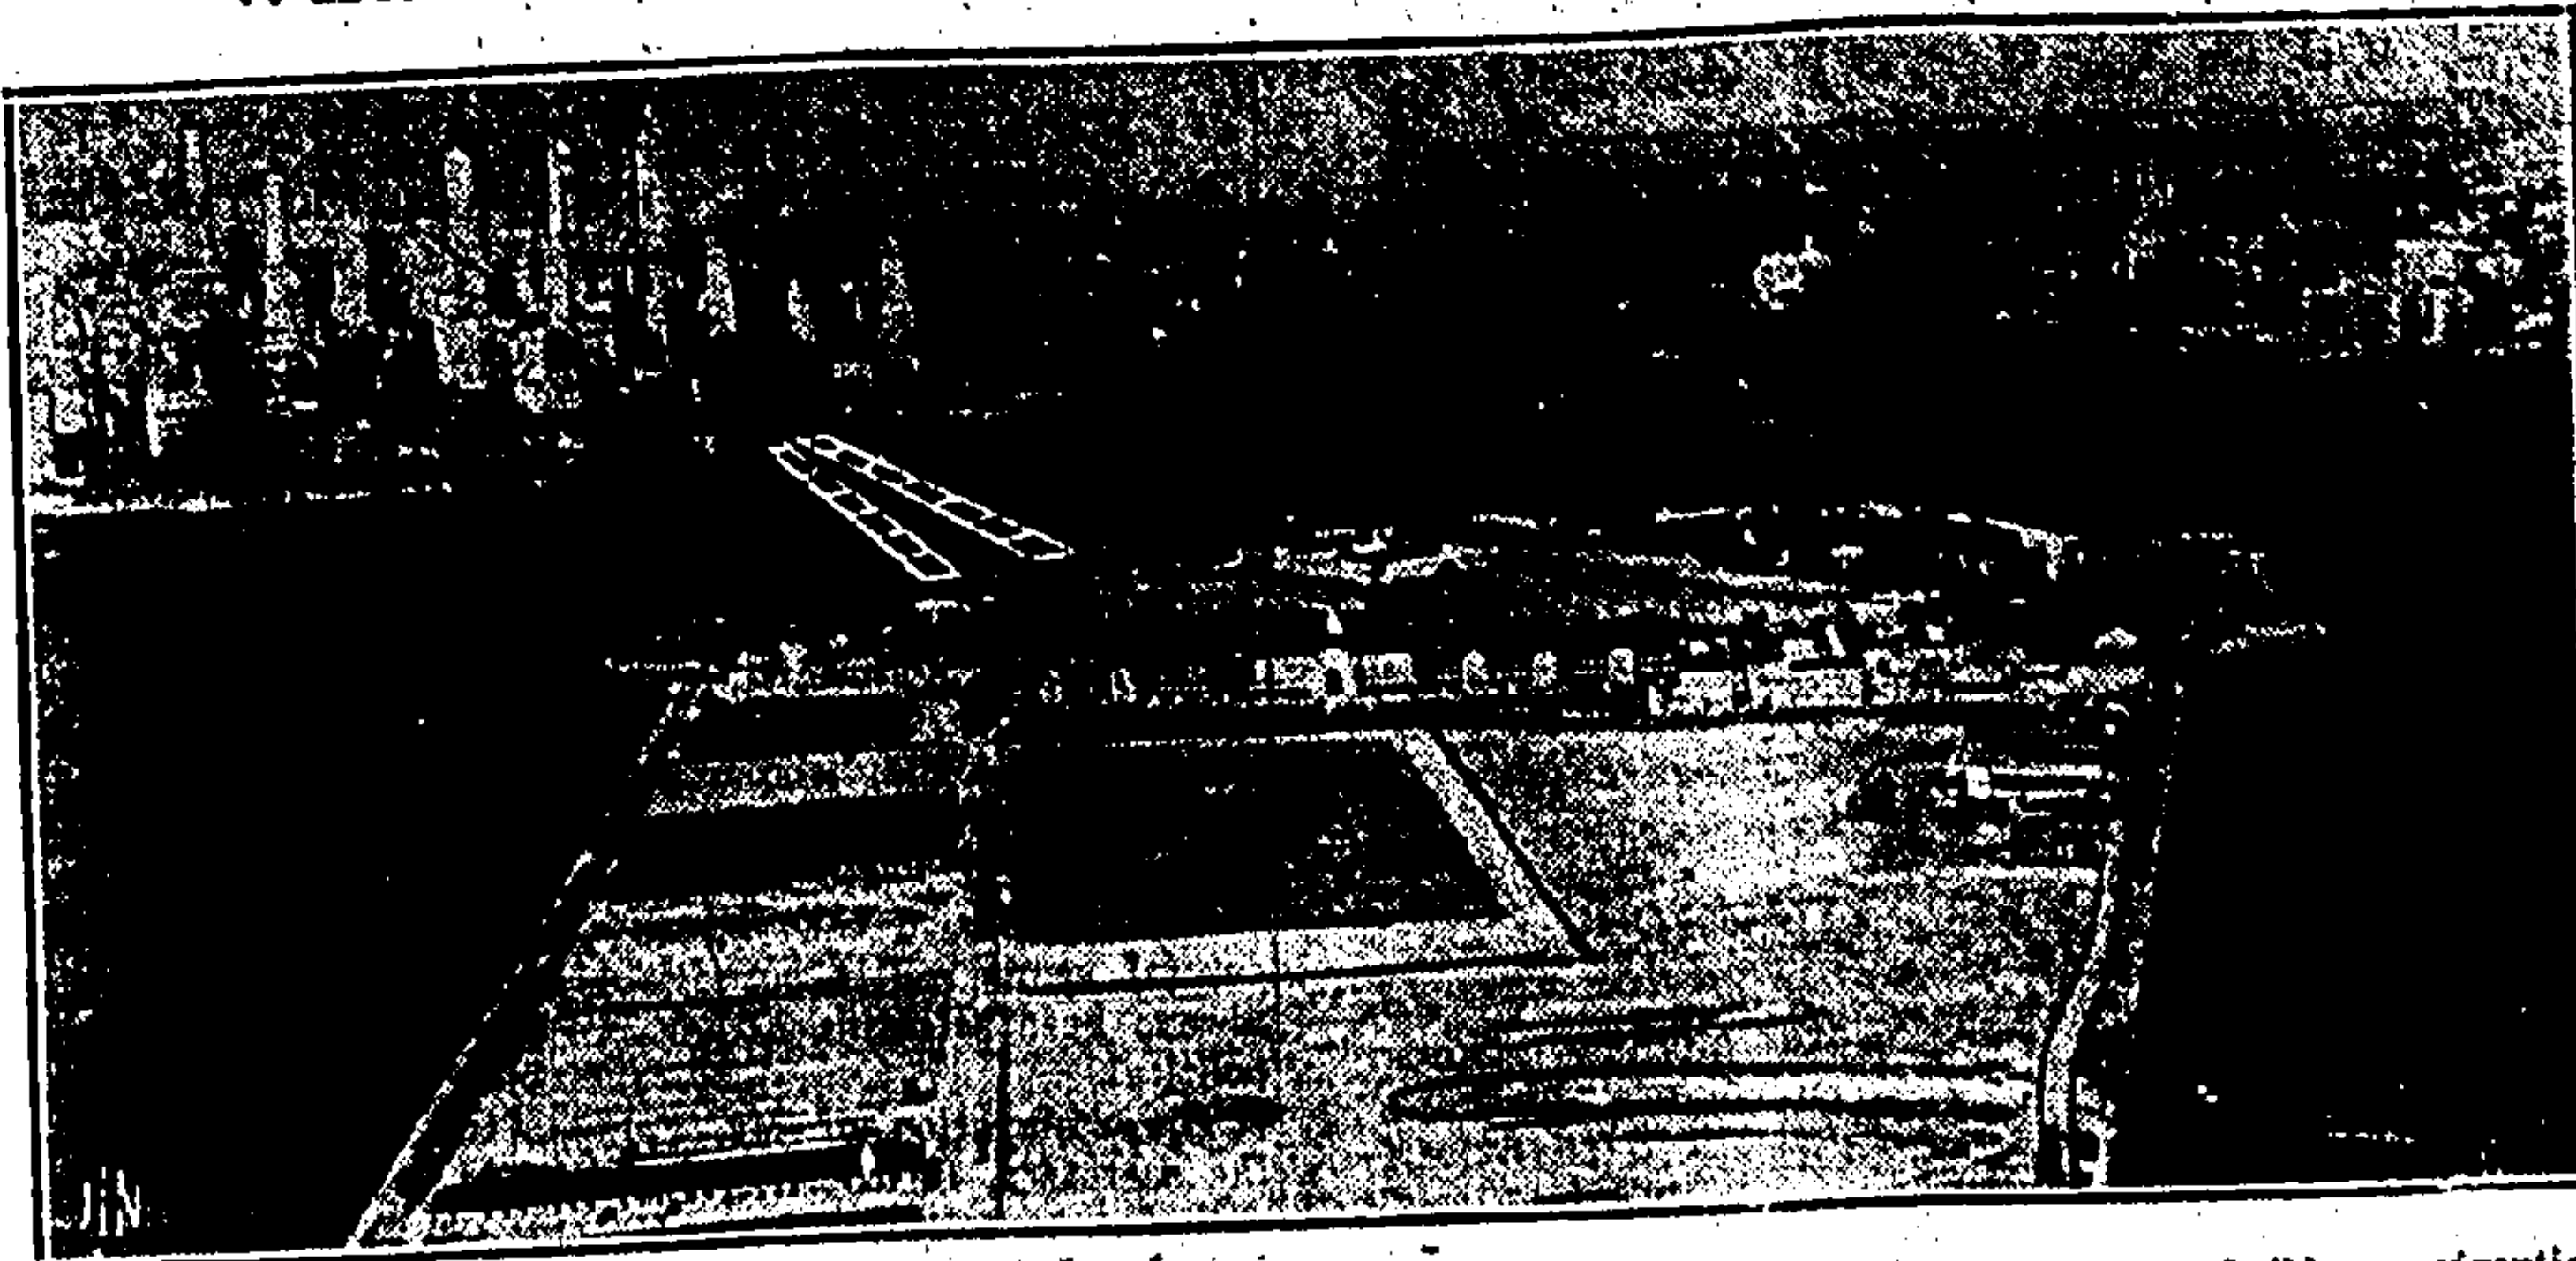

Yogi Hiranand also explained that wild animals went tame before him. He could pet the lion and tiger in their wild state, open their mouths and put his arm in. That power came to him suddenly one day in the Madras Zoological gardens. He saw a keeper ill-treating a lion, and overcome by sympathy for the animal went to the bars of the cage and called it. It came like a lamb, and he fondled it while the beast put up its face to him. Since that day he had exercised that power. Would it go away from him? He did not know. What other powers had he? He knew some of his powers but did not know whether he did not have more. But he knew some yogis who could draw water from stone or throw down a mighty banian tree by the mere touch.

Yogi Hiranand hopes to demonstrate to the world the existence of these powers and spread knowledge of them for every day purposes such as resisting disease and building up better bodies. He laid stress on the development of the will. Training was no doubt necessary but to the man whose will was indomitable, who was pure, and who was not attached to the objects of the senses, everything was possible. — Reuter.

HE STRANGLED A WOLF

Belgrade. A mad wolf attacked Alexander Ischovan in a village near Prishtina. Alexander seized the wolf by the throat, and gripped with all his strength, hanging on for life. The wolf became senseless, and Alexander then killed it with an axe. — Reuter.

LARGE GATHERING AT DINNER

"Although the Corps is not strong enough to man all the guns we want them to, it would be a fatal mistake to allow the Infantry to disappear. GAS EXPLOSION INQUIRY

Government Expert On Gasometer Condition.

WASTED BY CORROSION

That the plates of the gasometer, in some cases so corroded that daylight could be seen through them, was the expert evidence of Mr. W. A. Butterfield, tendered on behalf of the Government at the continued inquiry before Mr. E. W. Hamilton at Central Magistracy yesterday into the West Point gasworks explosion.

Mr. Butterfield stated that the plates he examined were so badly wasted by corrosion that, in some places, the plates were only of paper thickness.

The Jury sitting on the inquiry are Messrs. P. Tester (foreman), L. Dunbar and D. Drummond.

Mr. W. A. Mackinlay is appearing for the Gas Company, and Mr. W. M. Brown on behalf of certain owners whose property was damaged.

Mr. H. E. Stone, managing director of the Gas Company, underwent cross-examination for nearly two hours yesterday.

Papa Thickness.

Mr. William Arthur Butterfield, superintendent engineer of the Asiatic Petroleum Company, said he examined the gasometer at the request of the Government. He had not much experience of gasometers but had a great knowledge of tanks. His report, he stated, was confined to the material blown from the gasometer and did not touch on the origin of the fire.

Witness said: "I examined seventeen plates in all and from the average measurements of ten plates given above, it will be seen that many of the plates were badly wasted away by corrosion, particularly at their plate landings (the part adjacent to the points)."

"In these positions the plates are in many places only of paper thickness and, in some cases, through cracks obtain. Three of the plates examined showed a number of small perforations caused by corrosion, through which daylight could be seen. The cracks and perforations may have existed before the explosion, and were probably sealed by corrosion."

In answer to the Coroner, Mr. Butterfield said that the cracks and perforations would not have been visible to the naked eye. The dome would have appeared to be in good order to the casual observer, unless he knew what he was looking for. The container was well painted.

"If you had tapped to examine those plates, knowing their condition and age, and that the holder had previously had perforations, what would you have done?" asked the Coroner.

"I should have put the tank out of action as quickly as possible," replied the witness.

"You referred to the failure of the plates?"

"Yes. The plates fell out and failed to do the job for which they were intended, due to the wasted section at the plate landings, and also to the rivets pulling through."

"What do you consider was the condition of the plates?"

"I consider that they were in a very bad condition," replied the witness.

The hearing was adjourned until Monday afternoon.

SHOP ROBBERIES REVEALED

Los Angeles.

Herbert C. Wright, who was sentenced from two to 20 years in St. Quentin prison for robbing shops, testified that he spent most of his time in tunnels which he dug under the shops.

"I hated people," said the prisoner. "I didn't trust them. I liked the company of termites and rats and cats better than the company of man, for I'm a human mole."

In sentencing him to prison the judge remarked: "May be you can find a nice dark place up there to live in."

Wright told of making a hole in the basement of a chemist's shop, which he could enter and leave at will. He did the same thing to other stores nearby.

"I entered the shop probably 200

CODE OF MORALS FOR TEACHERS

Puritanical Traditions Denounced.

SHOULD SMOKE AND DRINK

New York.

Denouncing what he termed the outmoded, puritanical traditions that require school teachers to be 'goody goodies,' Dr. John Carr Duff of New York University has urged that they be allowed to smoke, drink, swear or even chew tobacco if they like it.

"I don't mean that they should be allowed to do these things in the classrooms, of course," he said, "but I do think the restrictions imposed on their private lives are entirely too stringent."

Dr. Duff asserted that to live up to present required standards of conduct, school teachers must be either 'sissies' or 'hypocrites.'

"And in the villages and rural districts," he added, "they have to live up to a moral standard that would put a strain on a thirty-second degree saint."

He cited a pledge which is required of all teachers in a North Carolina Town and called it "Typical." It included, he said:

"I promise not to fall in love, to become engaged or secretly married."

"I promise to abstain from all dancing, immodest dressing, and any other conduct unbecoming a teacher and a lady."

"I promise not to go out with any young man except in so far it may be necessary to stimulate Sunday School work."

Dr. Duff is chairman of the Advisory Board of the tenth annual junior high school conference which is seeking to evolve a new code of morals. — Reuter.

times," Wright said. "Sometimes it was for a candy bar, a piece of pie, chewing gum or to make myself an ice cream sod."

He finally robbed the safe of about £120. But he buried some of the money and was never able to find it.—Reuter.

EXCITING JOB IN EAST AFRICA

Animals Often Invade
Power Station

PROBLEMS FOR ENGINEER

Nairobi.

Mr. J. Holmes, resident engineer at the East African Power and Lighting Company's new Tapa River station, 60 miles from Nairobi, has one of the most exciting jobs in East Africa.

Although completely isolated from civilisation, he is never lonely—he is too busy keeping wild animals at bay.

Two lionesses and their cubs broke into the station and frightened switchboard attendants. Mr. Holmes drove them out before they could do any damage.

Hippopotami frequently come up from the river and romp in the garden outside the station. Baboons swarm all over the building—and a constant watch has to be kept to stop them playing havoc with the machinery.

Hundreds of storks get entangled in the overhead wires and are killed, often causing short circuits.

A crocodile recently caused a hitch in the work of the station by swimming into the canal which feeds the turbines.

When the canal was emptied the crocodile attacked and injured one of the station staff.—Reuter.

Expert Reports On China.

It is a commonplace that the enormous trade potentialities of China appear to retreat like a mirage before the enterprising and optimistic prophet. Many of the causes are so familiar to anyone who lives in Shanghai or Hong Kong that it would be a waste of time to refer to them. Nonetheless, the recent "Hands off China" controversy attracted a good deal of interest to the report submitted by Dr. Rajchman, the technical delegate of the League of Nations. What could he have recommended that has aroused so much criticism? The report itself is eminently sound and practical, dealing chiefly with roads and industries, a personal does not throw any light on the reception it received. It appears however that there was some personal irritation. Dr. Rajchman was accused of having recommended the Nanking Government to appeal to the League rather than to begin direct negotiations with Tokyo. There was also a grievance that the report had not been submitted to the Japanese Government. The first accusation seems to be correct, but quite a natural course for the League's representative, the second complaint arose through Japan having withdrawn from the Council. The more important question is the contents of the report itself.

It is difficult to find the prospects very rosy. In Chekiang, for example, which has been less disturbed by faction and war than most Provinces, the people live so near to the subsistence level that even the most desirable tax for improvements could not be met. A long period of wise administration would be required, and the human material cannot be improvised. It is all the more tantalising to have it clearly proved that sound management of communications, water conservancy, seed selection for cotton and other products, would be rewarded by a very high dividend. Everything would have to be based on a reform of the land system and education of a practical type. Dr. Rajchman in all this does little more than confirm what we have been told before. So far from any actual progress being seen, the land is actually deteriorating through lack of money to buy fertilisers.

A more recent report, now available is that compiled by Sir Arthur Salter for the Economic Council at Nanking. It deals with currency questions and finance, and shows that although capital could be more usefully employed in the interior than post-anywhere else in the world, what is happening is not the capitalisation but the decapitalisation of China. The conditions of unrest have caused the local reserves of silver to drift towards the ports, particularly Shanghai, for safe keeping. There for the most part it has been lying idle. He prophesies that the recent prosperity of Shanghai, largely deceptive because based on this drain from the inland districts, will not last long. The interior will be too poor to buy from the ports, and in another year or so the trade will begin to decline.

China as a whole felt the depression only about two years after the rest of the world, owing to the fall in the value of silver caused by the rise in the price of gold. This favoured exports, according to the principle now so well understood. The depreciation of the pound sterling, the rupee, the yen, and finally the gold dollar have all combined to send up the price of silver in relation to those currencies. It need hardly be said that Sir Arthur concurs with our local banking authorities in holding that any further artificial raising of the price of silver would merely make things worse.

The currency question comes back, like every other problem, to the necessity of restoring order so as to revive credit and allow the farmers to use the communications and inventions that are at their disposal as soon as there is a chance of work proceeding undisturbed. The foreign trade would feel the effects of good order at once. We can realise how easy, apart from political disturbances, it would be to finance the foreign trade when we realise that even in 1929 it only amounted to two per cent of the world's trade. The imports were at the rate of one dollar thirty four cents in American currency, the exports to one dollar sixty seven cents. In the same period the United States foreign trade was sixteen per cent of the whole, and India's share was double that of China. In spite of the dense over population the Indian standard of living is also twice as high.

Need the rise in prosperity always remain a mirage?

DR. YEN NOW IN NANKING.

Visits Chiang Kai-shek.

Dr. W. W. Yen, Chinese Ambassador to Moscow, arrived in Nanking yesterday to visit General Chiang Kai-shek, who is at present in Nanking for the commemoration of the tenth anniversary of the Central Military Academy. Dr. Yen will stay in the capital for a short time prior to his departure for Moscow to resume his post.

HERE, THERE
and
EVERYWHERE

Lord Rothschild

Although it is true that for some time there has been a divergence of opinion in the Jewish Board of Deputies on the question of the boycott of German goods, the resignation of Lord Rothschild has nothing to do with this problem.

Lord Rothschild, who was 66 in February, has been in poor health for some time. He has taken no active interest in the Board for several years. His pursuits have always been scientific rather than political.

The resignation of Mr. Zaiman, the secretary, is also unconnected with the boycott scheme. He objected to paragraphs in the report on the administrative work of the Board.

A Diplomatic Privilege

Lord Chilton, British Ambassador to Moscow, is in London, but he is not there to settle any thorny question of the trade treaty or of debts. He is merely taking advantage of the new Foreign Office privilege which grants to British diplomats marooned in Moscow an extra month's leave in every year.

How long this privilege will continue seems doubtful. For Moscow is rapidly acquiring the amenities of a bourgeois city.

An official, who has been posted in the Soviet capital for several years, used to take back from his periodic "leaves" in England odd suits to give away to his Russian friends. Now he has to take back new clothes for himself.

More Cosmetics, Less Divorce

The Russians, in fact, are becoming dressy. For several months now Moscow has had a chain of five high-class tailoring shops which somewhat optimistically guarantee the style and workmanship of their goods to be in the latest European fashion.

In the largest department store a six-foot sign reads: "On view—latest fashions from abroad." There is always a queue before it.

Moscow is changing in other ways. Easy divorce is now a thing of the past—especially for Communists. Members of the Party have now to obtain a special permit before they can enter the divorce bureau.

Your Daily Smile!

An old gentleman had just arrived at a seaside hotel and was pestering the reception clerk with all sorts of questions.

"Are you sure this is a healthy spot?" he asked.

The clerk smiled confidently. "Healthy?" he echoed, "I should say it is. Why, a little while ago an old fellow came here in a bath-chair, and after staying for a fortnight he ran away without paying his bill!"

Pardon Me

"Electricity," says a writer, "has taken most of the hard work out of domestic duties." Ohm, sweet ohm.

Evidence

"When I was up in Montana," said one man in the smoking-room, "I saw a mountain lion come right up to the camp one day. It was a fierce beast, but I, with great presence of mind, threw a bucket of water in its face, and it slunk away."

"Boys," said a man sitting in a corner, "I can vouch for the truth of that story. A few minutes after that happened I was coming down the side of the hill. I met this lion, and, as is my habit, stopped to stroke its whiskers. Boys, those whiskers were wet!"

She Should Have Known

Maisie thinks a powder magazine is a toilet necessity.

Two Essentials

"My boy," said the business man to his son, "there are two things that are vitally necessary if you are to succeed in business."

"What are they, dad?"

"Honesty and sagacity."

"What is honesty?"

"Always—no matter what happens, no matter how adversely it may affect you—always keep your word once you have given it."

"And sagacity?"

"Never give your word."

FILM QUOTA PROBLEM
IN BRITAINLEGISLATION THAT IS OPEN TO CRITICISMDUTY URGED ON FOREIGN PICTURES

(By Seton Margrave.)

THE Cinematograph Films Act has just entered the seventh of the ten years of its preordained existence. It is now possible to estimate with reasonable accuracy how far the Act will realise, or fail to realise, the chief purpose for which it was created—that is, to rehabilitate the industry of film-making in Britain.

The Act divides all films into two classes, British and foreign, and requires all dealers in foreign films to acquire a proportion of British films.

Dealers in films are individuals or companies engaged in renting films to cinemas. They are therefore called renters. The proportion of British films which renters of foreign films are obliged to produce or purchase is called the quota.

Graduated Scale

The quota is applied according to a graduated scale. It began in 1928 at 7½ per cent. It is now 17½ per cent. The maximum is only 20 per cent.

The present rate of 17½ per cent—which has been in existence for a year—may fairly be taken as an index to the ability of the Act to attain its objective.

In 1926 the total number of films made in Britain was 26. In 1927 the number was 37. These were the last two complete years before the effect of the quota began to be felt.

The number of films made in Britain last year was 188.

The objective of the Cinematograph Films Act is 200 films a year.

In mere numbers the purpose of the Act has apparently been realised.

But when the Act aimed at the production of 200 films a year it was assumed that all these films would be of reasonable quality. That assumption has not been realised.

There are 30 talking-picture studios or stages in and around London. Of these 30 studios, 20 are capable of producing first-class films.

It might therefore be argued that two-thirds of the 188 films made last year should have been of fair merit. But last year we had nothing like 125 British films of that standard—for a number of reasons.

Dearth Of Good Films

It is very difficult to make a good film, even when one is trying very hard to do so. When one is not trying at all, it is impossible.

When the Cinematograph Films Act was being argued, many people expressed the view that the force of the Act would be dissipated unless it were laid down that films to be eligible for the quota must have a reasonable amount of money spent on their production. But the Act became law without any such condition.

Any film made in the countries of the British Empire is eligible for the quota, regardless of quality. Hence we have had the extraordinary phenomenon of films being made—for example, in India—which would never otherwise have seen the light of day in Britain, being solemnly trade shown according to the requirements of the Act, and then being promptly and completely forgotten.

Films from other parts of the British Empire and films made in our lesser London studios have reached only slightly higher standards.

It may be said that many renters of foreign films have spent the past six years searching for coaches and horses to drive through the Cinematograph Films Act and that their efforts in this direction have met with most remarkable success.

Adverse Effect Of Act

The renters of foreign films cannot be blamed for securing their quotas of British films, in the cheapest possible markets. It is but natural that they should do so. In this respect, it is the Act itself that is open to criticism. Its intention was to encourage the making of British films of good quality. Its effect has been to compel the making of British films of poor quality.

In looking at the 188 British films made last year one finds that they must be divided into two groups: one group including all films made—according to the phrase current in the film trade—"for quota purposes only;" the other group including all films made as well as their producers know how to make them.

There are a few films which stand uneasily between these two groups, but approximately 97 of the 188 films of last year may be described as having been made "for quota purposes only."

That leaves us with only 91 films, as against the 200 at which the Act aims.

The President of the Board of Trade said recently, in answer to a question put by Sir Adrian Raillie (the Conservative member for Linlithgow), that he would consider amending the Cinematograph Films Act with regard to the quality of films eligible for the quota. The need for such amendment is painfully evident.

Question Of Employment

But suppose for a moment that quality does not matter and that the Act proceeds on its way to its appointed end in 1938.

In the final year of the Act we shall have approximately 120 films made "for quota purposes only."

Many people will be employed in the making of these films. But overnight on March 31, 1938, the need for these films will disappear. What, then, is to happen to the people who have been making them?

It is my impression that they will be thrown among the unemployed. The films in question cannot be sold on their merits, because they have none, and renters of foreign films may be relied on to begin a tremendous sales drive designed to push the British film industry back into its former obscurity. I think that it would be foolish to expect anything else.

I argue, therefore, that the Act has failed, and that its ending must be attended by disaster.

In 1938, when the quota is removed, the British film industry will be in the position that the more films it produces the fewer cinemas will be available for showing each individual film.

In British last year the number of films presented was 701. These 701 films had to share 4,000 cinemas between them. In America last year the number of films offered was 533. These 533 films shared 10,000 cinemas.

Therefore, the position of the British film industry, without an effective measure of safeguard, is one of hopeless inferiority to the American, even if this inferiority is offset considerably by the cost of production of films of equal quality being very much less in London than in Hollywood.

Considerable Improvement On Wall Street

"Bonds: High-grades are in demand, anticipating July re-investment. Second-grades are slightly better.

"Cotton: Quiet. The market will continue to be sensitive to adverse weather conditions. There has been no selling pressure and bulls will undoubtedly take advantageous opportunities in order to build up prices.

"Silver: The market is extremely dull.

"Rubber: Prices are firm and our opinion of the situation is unchanged.

"Wheat: Market steady and quiet. We recommend purchases of easy spots.

"Corn: The market is nervous on realising by local interests. We continue to recommend purchases on set-backs.

"The New York Silver and Rubber Markets will be closed on each Saturday from June 23 to September 1 inclusive."—Reuter.

E. A. Pierce's Report.

Commenting on the market, Messrs. E. A. Pierce and Company, through their local correspondents, the American Oriental Finance Corporation, state:—

"Stocks: The tone of the market is encouraging and we would consider it reasonable to expect a further slow improvement in prices.

"Wheat: Hedging and realising caused a slight rise in prices on evening up by local interests. The movement in the South-West is increasing.

"Cotton: A broad demand developed after the opening call under a moderate amount of new speculative purchases. Prices improved some 15 points from the day's low levels. The weather in the Eastern Belt is now more favourable than formerly.

"Silver: The market was dull. Only 14 lots were traded."—Reuter.

ment intends to interfere with the standstill agreement. I see no reason why it should be affected."—United Press, per S. C. Gold Bar Co.

FAVOURABLE RECEPTION.

London, To-day.

A favourable reception was accorded in the city to the House of Commons announcement by the Chancellor of the Exchequer, Mr. Neville Chamberlain, that in view of Germany's decision to suspend foreign cash transfers on State loans for six months from July 14, His Majesty's Government intends shortly to propose legislation for setting up an Anglo-German clearing office unless a satisfactory agreement, ensuring fair treatment of British bondholders and British commerce, can be negotiated before July 1.

Detailed arrangements, and the particular bonds to which the proposed legislation will refer, are being worked out, and will of course, depend upon the outcome of the negotiations with Germany.

The Dawes and Young loans are affected by the German decision, and the maximum amount of annual service, including the sinking funds on these loans, is £2,230,000.

Of this total, interest at 7 per cent on Dawes loan, in which there was no gold clause, amounts to £661,255, and with the sinking funds, to about £1,000,000.

There was a gold clause in the 5.5 per cent. Young loan. Interest alone accounts for £614,586, and the total service, including the sinking fund, amounts to £780,000. When the 60 per cent. allowance for the difference between sterling and gold payment is made, the total annual service on the sterling issue of the Young loan is £1,239,000.

BALANCE OF TRADE
In view of the clearing house proposal, attention is being directed to the Anglo-German balance of trade.

Overseas trade returns show that in 1933, the United Kingdom imports from Germany were of a value of £30,000,000. United Kingdom exports to Germany, including freight on British vessels, were valued at £17,000,000.

The warning given by Mr. Chamberlain that purchases of German bonds now held by foreigners will be made at the purchaser's risk was taken on the Stock Exchange to indicate that any plan adopted will apply only to bonds in British hands before the latest development.

NOTE TO BRITAIN
A note, informing the British Government of the circumstances which led to the German Government's decision to suspend cash transfers, was handed by the German Ambassador, to the Foreign Secretary, Sir John Simon, at the Foreign Office yesterday evening.—British Wireless Service.

GERMAN BONDS RECOVER
On the Stock Exchange yesterday, German bonds made a recovery, on the Chancellor's statement, but left off under the best figure, with Young at 43 and Dawes 62.—British Wireless Service.

UNIVERSITY MEN CATCH THIEF.

Thrilling Chase In Early Hours.

A night prowler made a very big mistake when he selected the home of two University undergraduates at 4 United Terrace, Homuntin, last night, to commit his latest theft.

Mr. V. Grunberg, a University student, was awakened at about 2.30 a.m. by the sound of his wardrobe being opened and saw a man standing in the room. Mr. Grunberg sprang out of bed and the man ran out through the door, carrying with him a brown knitted scarf as the only reward of his visit.

Mr. Gairloff, who also occupies the same house, was awakened by the noise and joined Mr. Grunberg in the chase. It was not very long, however, before they caught their man and marched him to the Mongkok Police Station where he was charged. The man gave his name as Li Hoi, aged 18, and unemployed.

AUSTRALIANS HELD

W. A. Brown, probably the keenest member of the touring team, carried his overnight score of 73 to 113 to register his second century of the season, while Matthews secured 5 for 87 to give him 9 for 158 in the match. Bakewell, a former England opening batsman, and Timms, were the only two to offer resistance to the wiles of Fleetwood Smith, and it was due solely to their dogged efforts that Northants were able to force a draw.

HAMMOND SCORES CENTURY.

Results as cabled by Reuter were:

At Tonbridge, Kent beat Worcester by 178 runs.
Kent: 344 and 304 for 6 dec.
Worcester: 278 and 192.

At Derby, Derbyshire took first innings points from Gloucester.

Gloucester: 209 and 307 (Hammond 134).
Derby: 336 and 93 for 0.

At Horsham, Sussex beat Surrey by 9 wickets.

Surrey: 280 and 224.
Sussex: 452 for 5 dec. (J. Parks 122, John Langridge 160).

RIPTIDE

"WHEN A WOMAN LOVES"
ADAPTED BY LUCY HUFFAKER
FROM THE SCREEN PLAY BY THOMAS GORDON

FOREWORD

Tommy is not his usual reckless self at the house party. One night he comes on Mary and recognises her despair. He is so gentle that scarcely realising it, she is in his arms. The Hall catches fire and when the alarm is given, Tommy is discovered in her room. Lord Rexford sends Mary a penitent wire, asking her to join him in St. Moritz and she goes at once.

CHAPTER XI

MARY had meant it when she had told Tommy she was going to put a definite finish to everything between her and Philip. She was going to tell him the truth—that what he had believed when it was not so, was now a fact. She cared for him too much to deceive him. It would hurt him—but it was better to have the wound now, a quick, decisive one, than later.

She scarcely spoke to Celeste on the long trip. All her thought, all her being was intent on what she must say to Philip. There would be no hesitation. As soon as they were alone, before he could weaken her resolution, she would tell him everything. Then they would separate—this time, it would be forever.

If a fire or some other disaster should wipe it out! are you prepared to replace it or would it mean a serious loss or setback to your progress? Insurance is your only safeguard.

ENOUGH? ? ? ? ?

Next to having no insurance is the danger of not having enough. Why have to face ANY loss when fire insurance is so cheap and complete coverage only a matter of a few extra dollars?

AMERICA LEAD IN WIGHTMAN CUP AT WIMBLEDON

In the second set Miss Jacobs won the first three games in rapid succession. Miss Scriven, however, made a plucky rally, and after trying her hardest she secured one game. She was, however, unable to cope with the American player's brilliant all-round game, and was beaten 6-1.

Miss Dearman and Miss Nancy Lyle combined perfectly in the doubles match to defeat Miss Carolyn Babcock and Miss Cruikshank 7-5, 7-5.

The Americans lacked harmony, and Miss Babcock was unsteady overhead. It was her lack of soundness in that department that enabled the British pair to recover from an anxious period. The Americans held set point at 5-4 in the first set.

The second set proved a repetition of the first, the Americans holding set point at 5-3, but in each case Miss Babcock threw away opportunities at the net.

One of the soldiers, however, left his service cap and stick in the car. The driver returned to town and made a report at the Wanchai Police Station.

SEEN AT STANLEY
At 1.20 o'clock this morning three soldiers were seen in the vicinity of Stanley Police Station, but later when the police report of an highway robbery was circulated, all efforts to locate the soldiers proved unsuccessful. A large number of police were sent to Stanley and a concentrated search of the countryside in the vicinity of Stanley and Island Road was made throughout the night.

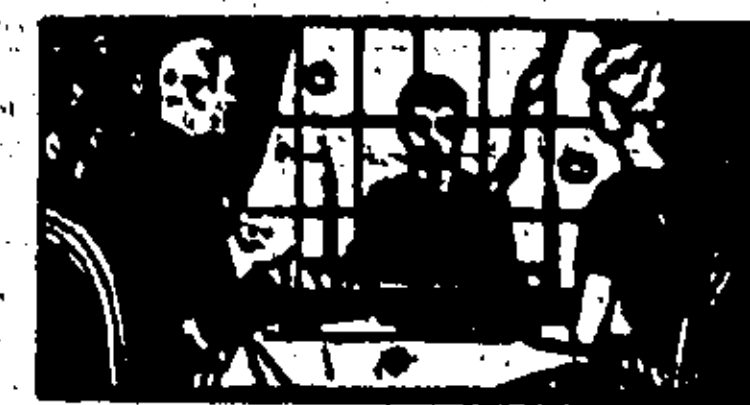

The search continues, but the police have, on going to press, failed to locate the three soldiers.

A dinner dance will be held at the Repulse Bay Hotel to-night, and a tea dance to-morrow at 4.30 p.m.

enable the British pair to recover and go out for the set and match total 7-5.—Reuter.

Put together with Bear Brand whipping cream well whipped to which drained crushed pineapple has been added. Add more whipped cream as topping.

STUFFED ONIONS

Select rather large onions, the Spanish variety if they can be obtained. Allow from a half to a whole onion for each person to be served. Cut the onions in half, parboil gently until fairly tender, taking care not to get them out of shape. Lift them out of the water with a skimmer. Arrange in a buttered pan or baking dish. Scoop out the onion center and chop fine. Mix with about an equal quantity of buttered crumbs and a few chopped nuts or a little minced cooked bacon or ham. Season the stuffing with salt and pepper.

Stuffed Peach Salad.

4 halves canned peaches
1/2 cup crushed pineapple
1/2 cup cottage cheese
1/4 teaspoon salt
4 tablespoons salad dressing

Chill ingredients. Mix cheese, salt and pineapple. Stuff peaches and serve on lettuce. Top with dressing.

SODA SPOILS CAULIFLOWER

Do not put soda into water used for boiling cauliflower, or the flower will turn yellow.

Chicory can be boiled or steamed in the same way as sea-kale, and makes a new dish.

THE DECORATIVE HORS D'OEUVRE

Cucumber Boats Are Delicious.

Here are some recipes and suggestions for hors d'oeuvre:
Rolls Anchovies.—Fillet some anchovies, roll each one, and fill the centre with some creamed smoked fish—haddock, herring or kipper—blended with mayonnaise sauce. Another way is to fill the fillets with a mixture of minced gherkins, capers, hard eggs, fresh herbs (chives, chervil, tarragon) blended with green mayonnaise.
Cucumber Boats.—Peel the cucumber, cut it into long pieces and shape like boats; then throw them into boiling slightly salted water for a few minutes, but do not let them get soft and shapeless. Lift out and let them cool. Fill with green peas creamed with cream and seasoned. Sprinkle the tops with finely minced fresh mint.

An alternative is to shape the cucumber as small cups filled with shrimps mixed with aspic.

Caviar Rolls.—Tiny unsweetened Bridge rolls split lengthwise, scooped out, filled with caviar blended with cream sharpened with a little lemon juice aspic over. A small piece of stuffed olive or truffle or foie gras, or an oyster or rolled fillet of anchovy can be placed in the centre of the aspic before it is set, just as a garnish.

Caviar Croutets.—Caviar can be spread on fingers of buttered toast, or, better still, small oblong whole wheat biscuits.

Shrimp Toasts.—Toasts spread with shrimp butter and then with a fine mince of prawns, celery and gherkins blended with mayonnaise flavoured with tomato sauce or puree.

CHOCOLATE FUDGE SAUCE

3 squares unsweetened chocolate
1/2 cup water
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 cup sugar
1 cup evaporated milk
3 tablespoons white corn syrup

Melt in top of double boiler the unsweetened chocolate. Stir water in slowly. Then add the sugar and corn syrup. Boil to 234 degrees F. or until a few drops form soft ball when dropped into cold water. Remove from heat. Then add the evaporated milk and vanilla.

Custard Suggestions.

When baking custards place the dish in a pan of hot water and bake in slow oven. Too quick cooking or over cooking will cause the mixture to become watery or curdled. Custards are delicious and should be frequently served during this season. They are economical and nutritious.

WHEN STONING RAISINS

Instead of stoning raisins in the usual way, soak them for a few moments in boiling water. The stones can then be easily squeezed out at one end.

When Buying Salmon

Tinned pink salmon is less expensive than the red variety, and not so fine in flavour, but a good brand proves useful for such dishes as fish cakes or kedgeree.

Banana Fritters

1 1/2 cups flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 egg
3/4 cup milk
1 tablespoon sugar
1 cup sliced bananas

Mix flour, baking powder, salt, egg, milk, sugar. Beat well. Add bananas and drop from a spoon into deep hot fat. Fry 5 minutes, turning with fork to allow even browning. Remove to tissue paper, drain well. Service with orange sauce.

Orange Sauce

1/2 cup orange juice
3 tablespoons lemon juice
1 cup sugar
1-1/2 tablespoons flour
1/4 teaspoon salt
1/2 cup water
1 tablespoon butter

Blend sugar, flour, salt. Add remaining ingredients. Cook slowly, stirring constantly until sauce becomes thick and creamy. Serve warm.

TURKEY AND PEAS EN CASSEROLE.

2 tablespoons flour
1 cup turkey broth
2 tablespoons butter
1 cup cold cooked peas
1/2 cup tomato ketchup
2 cups cold turkey
Salt and pepper.

Bread crumbs

Melt butter in pan, add flour and mix well. Add turkey broth, ketchup and cook until boiling, stirring constantly. Season with salt and pepper. Place cold turkey and peas in alternate layers in a baking dish or pan and pour the hot sauce over them. Sprinkle with bread crumbs and dot over with butter. Bake in a moderate oven 350 degrees until brown and serve.

BROWNED POTATOES

When browning potatoes under the joint, blanch them first (cover with cold water, boil up, and strain) to prevent a leathery skin forming.

The newest French beans are not green, but purple or red! They would make colourful additions to a meat course, arranged round the dish alternately with new potatoes.

Lost Hapsburg Royal Heir Found in Missouri

Countess Marie Larisch, niece of the late Empress Elizabeth of Austria, attests in the handwriting shown here that "James L. Cleveland" of Providence, Mo., actually is Rudolf Hapsburg, Yourievsky, natural daughter of Tsar Alexander II of Russia. He is supposed to have been born in America after his mother fled from Vienna to escape the wrath of Emperor Franz Josef. After having been reared in a Catholic institution in St. Louis, he became a plain citizen. When he married, he and his bride signed and filed in the county court, an ante-nuptial agreement that any children of their union would be protected from seizure by Hapsburgs, Mr. and Mrs. "Cleveland" and their home in Providence are pictured.

Mary leaned against the wall a moment for support. She must brace herself to face Philip, to make him listen to her. Then she must leave at once. If Tommy carried out his mad threat, there was nothing so terrible it might not happen. She must get Philip to leave, on some pretext. If those two men met now, there might be murder.

"Philip" she said sternly when she returned to him. "The last time we saw each other you said I'd failed you and our marriage. I hadn't—I swear by the love I have had for you—I hadn't, but—"

"Mary, I know it. I have told you that. Why must you torture us both by going back to that? While I've been here alone, I've stood out on that balcony, I've spoken to you into the night—love telling me you'd hear it, wherever you were, and come to me. It is not easy for me to talk of my feelings—but last night, when I could not sleep, the hours seeming endless until you would be here, I wrote out all my heart. Here are the things I haven't been able to say. Will you read it, Mary my own?"

He handed her some papers he had taken from his pocket. Then humbly, but also with a rare dignity, he turned away from her and walked to the balcony, looking out on the beautiful white landscape. She held the papers for a moment in shaking hands. Then slowly, as if it were written in some only half-known language, she read what Philip had written from his heart. When she had finished, she rose and went toward him. He turned and they faced each other. "I didn't know," she said. "Didn't know what?"

"That you loved me like this. Oh what a pity that things got so dark."

"We are leaving the darkness behind, Mary. We will be out in the radiant light if you say one thing, just one thing, to me. Tell me—do you love me?"

"Before God, I do," she said and her voice was that of one taking a vow before the high altar.

She had, indeed, made a vow. She saw as in a blinding light, that it would be a cowardly, a wicked thing to tell Philip the truth. They loved each other. They belonged to each other. She would do anything in the world for him—she would lie if necessary. The one thing she would not do—would never do—was to kill the ecstasy in his heart.

CHAPTER XII

It was a beautiful, glistening day when Mary was awakened by the ringing of the telephone. She listened to the voice from London—it was Aunt Hetty. She could barely answer. For the first time, she was crying—but these were the cleansing tears of relief. Tommy had been found—he was sober—he was not flying to Switzerland—he was sorry for any anxiety he had given.

Business was calling Lord Rexford back to London, but neither he nor Mary could bear to leave St. Moritz until the week was rounded out. The day came when they had to leave, however, and when they reached Grosvenor Square, their delight at seeing Pamela again and being once more at home was so great they forgot their disappointment.

Then just as Philip was leaving for his office, the butler announced that Mr. Trent was on the phone! In a quick voice, Mary said to tell him she was out. Ballard returned in a moment to say Trent asked her to call him at the Ritz as soon as it was convenient.

Philip said nothing, beyond suggesting they dine at home alone and to bid her give Aunt Hetty his greetings, when she said she was going to have luncheon with her. Mary waved her hand to him as he was driven down the street and he smiled and waved at her. She did not know he had ordered the chauffeur to drive him to the Ritz.

A few minutes later Sylvia came in. She was lunching with Lady Riversleigh but she couldn't wait until then to see Mary. Also, she said she wanted to see her little niece. She was sailing soon for New York and so she wanted to spend all the time Mary had free, with her. While they were talking and laughing, the phone rang and Sylvia answered. It was Tommy Trent. He insisted he must speak to Mary. Sylvia told him Mary refused to come to the phone, but when she gasped "Philip—calling on you!" Mary grabbed the receiver from her. She implored him not to see Philip and Tommy said he was sending Erskine down in his place, to say he was out. He wanted to see her at Aunt Hetty's, where he knew she was lunching and reluctantly she gave her consent.

"You know," drawled Sylvia when Mary left the phone, "I'm taking you back to New York. Oh yes, I am, sister of mine. You say everything is all right, but I know by your face it isn't."

Mary laughed for answer, but there was no merriment in it. Why had Philip gone to see Tommy?

She was genuinely glad to see Aunt Hetty again and she greeted Tommy in the casual way of one old friend to another. But he would not be put off and when he asked what she was going to do and she said "Nothing—except stay at home with Philip and Pamela, where I belong," he shook his head.

"Mary," he said, "don't try to do it. You can't. I love you, Mary. I want to settle down—with you. There can be a quiet divorce and then—"

"But I don't want anyone but Philip," she interrupted. "I know what you want to ask—and are too well-bred to. No, I have not told Philip. And no one else is going to. Or if they do, I'll deny it."

"You can't," they all exclaimed.

FIVE MURDERED ON FARM

Youth's Blood-Lust In Yugoslavia.

FAMILY DISPUTE TRAGEDY

Prague. Joseph Celka, aged 30, of Pruzina, a village in the Ilave district of Yugoslavia, is the only surviving member of his family.

He has been placed under arrest, charged with the murder of his father, mother, brother, sister-in-law and aunt, who all lived together on a farm at Pruzina.

Police burst into the house to find Joseph, gun in hand, standing over the five bodies. He was overpowered after a brief fight.

The tragedy arose out of a quarrel between Joseph and his father over the son's poaching activities. Angered by his father's remonstrances, Joseph is alleged to have seized a gun and shot him through the head.

Then more shots rang out. His brother fell wounded, but was dragged under a bed by his wife. Both of them were shot dead as they lay on the floor.

Still the killer's thirst for blood was unquenched.

Joseph's mother and aunt begged on their knees to be spared. Their pleadings were in vain. Two more shots completed the terrible carnage.—Reuter.

HOME WRECKED BY COOKERY CLASS

Husband Dislikes New Dishes.

Belgrade. The home of Sheriff Karajitch and Nura, his wife, was run on thoroughly old-fashioned lines, and they were happy.

Nura thought she ought to improve things. She went to cookery classes—and trouble started.

Every time she tried out one of the strange new dishes she learned to make, there was a quarrel. Every time she tried a new way of doing her simple household tasks, her husband bent her.

Nura fled to her father's house. Sheriff Karajitch and his friends followed her, and carried her off shrieking.

Now the husband has been forced to go into hiding for kidnapping his own wife.

From his hiding-place with relatives, he has sent word to his father-in-law that as long as he is alive he will not let Nura leave him.—Reuter.

INCUBATED EMUS

Moscow. Eight emu chicks have been hatched out in an incubator in the Moscow Zoological Gardens. The eggs took 48 days to hatch.—Reuter.

Where Thugs Shot Children

Here is the scene and two of the victims of New York's latest bandit outrage. Policeman Arthur Rasmussen (top) was slain when he engaged in a duel with bandits who robbed a store (arrow).
The thugs fired indiscriminately, wounding three children, one of whom, Leonore Albanese (below), 16, is in a critical condition.

CHILDREN THROUGH THE AGES

Fascinating Exhibition
In London

PROCEEDS FOR CHARITY

London.
One of the most fascinating
exhibitions London has ever known has been opened to raise money for charity.
It is "Children Throughout the Ages"—an exhibition which is an unrivalled collection of children's clothes, toys, books and pictures from the dawn of civilisation to the present day. The list of exhibitors, headed by the Queen,
includes every name in English Society.

The pictures alone are worth well over £1,000,000 and they are but a small branch of the exhibition.

The collection of royal christening robes is reputed to be the finest ever seen for it includes the cap, robe and mittens worn by Queen Elizabeth when she was christened. These little relics have been exhibited before.

Anne Boleyn, Queen Elizabeth's mother, gave them to one of the women of her bedchamber
after the christening. They have remained as heirlooms in that family ever since.

Beside the baby clothes of Charles II lie the long silk christening robe and tiny bodices of Oliver Cromwell, the "Iron Protector". Close by is a braided coat worn by Charles I at the age
of two.

Best of all are the toys.
They range from baked clay teething-rings which belonged to children born 2,000 years B.C. to the latest models of railway engines and aeroplanes. Among them is a miniature bronze chariot which was the favourite
toy of a little Roman boy.

In pride of place is the dolls'
teaset which Queen Mary played with in her childhood and her favourite doll—a brunette with glorious bobbed hair and skirts sweeping the ground. Next come two gold rattles given to the Prince of Wales by his great-grandmother, Queen Victoria.

There are, of course, all sorts of dolls' houses, dolls' beds, cradles and clothes.
Little boys are amply represented by catapults, toy soldiers and examples of everything else
boys have enjoyed playing with throughout the ages.—Reuter.

stitute of Placidiare show that the fish there have become wireless

STARVING WOMAN'S FORTUNE

Huge Hoard Found In Rubbish Heap.

£20,000 IN SECURITIES

Berlin.
When the welfare authorities
entered the house of a starving old woman at Zittau they found:—

£121 sterling, 320 gold dollars,
2,130 German marks, including many obsolete gold coins, and over £20,000 worth of securities.

The woman, who was 66 years old, had long been living in poverty, and had been receiving public relief.

Recently she locked herself up
in her room and refused to admit or speak to anyone. Fears of suicide induced the welfare authorities to break in.

They found the woman in bed exhausted with hunger. The room was littered with heaps of clothes, books, newspapers, lines, hales of cloth, brushes, boots, trunks, baskets, cardboard boxes, supplies of decaying food, crockery and cooking utensils.

And underneath all this mass of rubbish, they found her secret fortune.—Reuter.

FILM QUOTA PROBLEM IN BRITAIN

What, then, do I suggest as a remedy?

I suggest that the principle of the quota should be continued and that an import duty of £1 a foot should be imposed on all foreign films.

Such a duty would be easily borne by films of good quality, but it would have the immediate effect of stopping the import of inferior foreign films which are now earning as little as sums between £7,000 and £11,000 in Britain.
They are merely cluttering up screen space and could well be done without.

I suggest, also, that the method of hiring films in groups should be discontinued. The practice of attaching to an exceptionally successful film four, five or six other films compels all cinema owners to show many films they do not wish to exhibit, and which their patrons
do not wish to see.

The future of the British film industry demands that the poorest quality of British film shall cease to be made; that the poorest
quality of foreign film shall cease to be imported; and that cinema
owners shall be able to hire films slightly at rates much lower than some of the fantastic percentages of receipts being imposed to-day.

WAR SHELL GOES OFF

Warsaw.
An old shell was among scrap iron fed into a Warsaw furnace. The explosion blew the furnace furnace to bits, ruined part of the funace, and injured several workmen.

"You don't know what a woman will do for the man she loves. I'm a truthful woman but I know now
there is something more sacred than truth. That thing is protection—I must protect Philip. I realized in St. Moritz this thing would break him. I will not let it."

There was a moment of silence
and then the butler announced
"Lord Rexford."

His greetings were brief; then he said he had come to see Tommy.

"I heard you called," said Tommy.

"Can I be of service?"

"You can. I would like you to stop annoying my wife."

"I wasn't aware," began Tommy,
then turning to Mary: "Did it
annoy you when I phoned this morning?"

"Perhaps—a little. It annoyed Philip, as you can see."

"Mary, did you arrange to meet Trent here?" Philip demanded.

Before she could answer, Sylvia said: "She did not. Tommy and I are lunching at our favourite bar.
Come on."

Mary shot her sister a thankful look. Philip saw it and read it rightly. Sylvia put on her coat and she and Tommy went to the door.

"Goodbye, Mary," he said. "I won't annoy you again. Nor you, Lord Rexford. I would do anything for Mary. You see—I happen to love her. I will say more—I've asked her to leave you and marry
me. I have seen how she suffers with you."

"Tommy!" It was Mary gasping.

There was a hard look on Lord Rexford's face, as he said: "What are you all trying to hide?"

"Philip, there is nothing to hide,"
Mary said.

"I don't believe you."

Something seemed to snap in Tommy's brain, as he saw Mary hold out her arms in supplication
to her husband.

"Mary, I can't stand this another minute—I won't," he said. "You shall not stand there and be insulted like this. You can't go on like this. He knows!"

"Thank you, Trent," said Philip.

"At least I am grateful to you for letting me know the truth—at last."

He was gone without another word.

So Mary was going back to America with Sylvia.

She had not returned home, but had gone to the hotel with her sister. Celeste had brought her clothes to her. She had not seen Philip. She could not trust herself to see Pamela. The day before she was to sail, she went to the office of Philip's lawyer. There were some papers she was to sign. There was to be no divorce immediately,
but she was to sign an agreement that Pamela was to remain with her father. Mary was to see her only when she came to England.

The lawyer had handed her the papers, when to her surprise, Philip entered.

"I will not sign this," she said.

"Philip, I give Pamela into your keeping. It is only right I should.
But this 'consideration of two thousand pounds annually' is an insult.
I am not selling my child. I do not need the money. I have some income—and I can make my living,
again, as I did before I knew you.
Strike out that clause and I will sign."

"You don't have to sign anything, Mary," said Rexford. Then to the lawyers: "Will you please leave me and my wife for a minute?
I must speak to her alone."

Mary looked him full in the eye,
when the men had left, and asked:
"What more can I do, Philip, than leave you and promise, as I do,
never to see my child again?"

He took the papers and tore them to bits. He tried to speak, but could not.

"Philip," said Mary gently, "I've done all I know. If there is anything else—there is nothing I would not give you—my life if necessary."

At that, he broke down. He sat heavily in a chair. His face was that of a dead man. Mary looked at him. She hesitated—but it was only for a moment. Then she proved the truth of her protestations.

"Do you, knowing the whole truth, want me to stay? If you do, Philip, I am yours—forever and forever."

He could not speak. But his open arms and the tears in his eyes
as he held her to him and kissed her, rang louder than any words
could have done.
